SECRET

1. This five day orientation is aimed at the specific needs of DDO officers who are involved in the collection of foreign scientific and technical intelligence. The objectives are:

a. To familiarize officers with collection responsibilities in the field of science and technology.

b. To highlight significant foreign scientific and technical capabilities.

c. To familiarize officers with the Agency organization for scientific and technical intelligence collection, gaps in collection, current requirements, and the range of existing and possible operational approaches available to attack the collection problem.

2. In order that officers may more readily recognize leads to fulfill S&T requirements, familiarization instruction will be offered in selected scientific disciplines, and will be taught fundamental principles and the identifying features and indicators associated with principal S&T intelligence targets. Lectures will be as non-technical as possible, using visual aids where appropriate.

3. The orientation also provides an opportunity for members of operating components within DDO to become acquainted with members of the DDS&T in order to facilitate future exchanges between case officers and specialists in the relevant S&T fields.

4. Students taking the course must have SI and T-KH clearances.
